Detectives and patrolmen from the East Fifty-first Street police station rearded John D. Rockefeller jr., when e attended the first services held yes-Church, 593 Park Avenue. The new difice serves the congregation formerly known as the Fifth Avenue Baptist. Whether acting on information that led them to fear an attack on Mr. Rockefeller, or merely from precautionary motives, detectives closely scrutnized every person entering the church, remaining on duty from 9 a.m. to noon. On leaving the church at the latter hour. Mr. Rockefeller thanked the detectives for their guardianship, remarking that he had no idea there was to be a police detail. It was a surprise to him, he said. difice serves the congregation former-Standees Undergo Scrutiny

No statement was made with regard to the police guard, but it became known that orders had been received from "a high police authority" to "take no chances on cranks" in connection with the opening services at the new church. It was said later that while Mr. Rockefeller knew nothing of the guard in advance, trustees of the church had requested it.

Captain Wall, in charge of East Fifty-first Street station, said that the police activity had been a matter of precaution because of possible crowding and to prevent depredations by lawless persons; that Mr. Rockefeller's presence had not been the inspiring cause.
